CHINA has at last decided that it has been whipped enough and will sue for peace.

The residence in Washington City owned and occupied by the late James G. Blaine, is to be demolished and a theatre erected in its place.

No, the Democrats in this county are not considering a candidate to make the race for the Legislature next year. There is time enough for as when the Republicans shall have united among themselves.

The members of the State Democratic Executive Committee, say that it is not within their line of duty to call the State Convention that they shall nominate a candidate for United States Senator. The Convention must govern its own actions in that regard. Whether it will be done or not is a matter of feeling among a great many Democrats that the coming State Convention should make such a nomination.

The news goes to press on this morning preceding Christmas day, verily the happiest of all the year, mindful of what has been told in both song and story, that it is a time of peace, the most eventful of all the past. Friendships are renewed, old tales are retold, and the hearts of all are lightened by the surroundings. Christmas gives time for study and reflection. Peculiarly, it is the child in its innocence and merriment regards it too as the time most joyful of all. Surrounded somewhat in mystery, revealing things strange and new, in some respects, yet the fancy and the appearance of Santa Claus at once peaceful and sublime. Let us all be thankful therefore that we have the power to realize sufficiently to be complex that it is a time of peace. And while we are appropriating it so much to ourselves, let us not be altogether selfish. There are those who need to share some of the peace and provisions, and whether we have much or little, let us give it freely and in the spirit of Him who gives us this day to celebrate.

THE OOD OF PLANTS.

It Comes From the Heart of the Flower Usually, sometimes From the Leaves.

The various delightful or disagreeable odors of the plant family are in the flower itself, though in some species the odor is in the leaves and stem or even in the root. In either case the odor is due to the presence of an essential oil, usually of a resinous nature. The number of these oils is unknown, and their nature is so complex that even a slight variation in the temperature or in the quantity of light falling upon the plant, may result in a rearrangement of their component elements, resulting, so far as the smell is concerned at least, in an entirely different compound.

Propyl ether, which is an example of these unstable compounds, is slightly different arrangement of its elements, be made to yield either the odor of pineapple or of decaying fish. The reason, therefore, why the odor of a plant has a different odor is the case with which one perfume may be transformed into another. Sufficient cause for such transition is often found in the mode of life of each variety of plant and the difference in their chemical constitution.

Whatever in any way affects the life or growth of a plant, will also affect its odor.

The nature of the soil and its humidity, the variation of the amount of sunlight, the intensity of the sunlight will sooner or later transform the entire nature of a plant, for, as has been said, it produces exactly the same perfume as another, must not only be of the same species, but live in the same atmosphere, air, etc. It must also absorb a similar amount of light and breathe the same, which would, of course, result in leaves similar in size, color and shape.

HOW A MAN GOES TO SLEEP.

Stomach Begins at the Feet, and the Nerves Become Dormant One After Another. "Order to heaven's first lie," and the old truth is manifested even in the process of going to sleep. When a man drops off to sleep, his body does not go all at once, so to speak. Some organs become dormant before others and all in the same order. As he becomes drowsy the eyes close, and the house of seeing is at rest. It is quickly followed by the disappearance of the sense of touch. His next sense to become dormant is then after a short interval the tongue becomes insensible to sound, or rather the nerves which connect the tongue from it fall to arouse any sense of hearing.

The last sense to leave is that of touch, and in some hypersensitive people it is hardly ever dormant. Even in their case, however, there is no distracting power or sense of touch awakened. This sense is also the first to return upon awakening. Then hearing follows, after that taste, and then the eye becomes able to flash impressions back to the brain. The sense of smell, oddly enough, though it is the first to go, is the last to come back.

The same gradual loss of power is observed in the motion of the body, as well as in the sense. Stomach begins at the feet and slowly spreads up the limbs and trunk until it reaches the brain, when consciousness is complete and the whole body is at rest. This is why sleep is impossible when the feet are cold. —New York World.

A pupil of the late Professor Hahnemann relates that when his master had discovered the velocity of nerve currents in the use of electric measurements Alexander von Humboldt had written to Dr. Bohn-Reymond, "Then nerve currents move only 9/10 as fast as the lightning."

Messrs. Bush and Croyce, the two genial gentlemen who run the "Texans" pay car came in a little ahead of time last week so the boys could have their money for X-mas. They scattered about $18,000 along the road.

Notwithstanding the town was crowded with people both Saturday and Monday, not a disturbance of any kind occurred. Several of the country lads got pretty full and funny but they kept their tempers and went home happy.

It took just 25 cents to walk on the people—it took two rapid money change—it took two wagons to haul the goods—you can't fool the people—they know where the bargains are to be found—there is no place like Sulzer's.

Mr. E. A. Dowell, Walnut Ridge, Ark., in renewing his subscription to the News, asks to be remembered to all of his old friends in Cloverport, and says he is sorry he can't of Allen Murray's illness and hopes he will get well.

A week this entered the home of Mrs. Emma Bueh, living on the hill, several nights ago, while she was at church and took her father bed and when she returned home she found the "girls" all piled up nearly in the middle of the room, but her father was missing.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA
It can have no substitute. Cures other, will cure you

Old Chatterbox.
Ladies, have you read Trilby? If not you had better stay away from the sewing circle. You have no business at the millinery store. In fact, it is not so much a woman, that comes of a smart family, (all smart people read now) and the first question will be, "have you read Trilby?" and this will cause a little feminine shudder.

So you had better remain at home until you have thoroughly mastered Trilby. Then when you go to these places of resort you will be qualified to discuss Mr. George DuMaurier and his Trilby, which has recently agitated the novel readers all over the world. You will be better able to guess the musician he refers to as being the only one born this century. Of course a majority will suggest Schubert, since the musical world is just recovering from the shock of the new that were music transferred to a world where music is the leading theme in the Eternal hereafter. There is a wide field for discussion on the mysterious hypnotism, a power that some people have over some people, and something that nobody knows anything about.

After this little self preliminary conversation, a home-like, familiar feeling comes over all, and a sigh of relief is passed around. A feeling something like Mr. Howells had when he was asked to take tea with Mr. Fields, in Boston, to meet Longfellow, Lowell and Holmes, and hear them call each other Jim and Henry and Wendell.

The next thing in order is to discuss the affairs of those that are not present, where Mrs. F. we thought got her new dress, while her husband was so "hard up," how it is that some one else went to the city to buy her new hat, and why was not Mrs. — invited to the last tea.

I don't wish to convey the idea by these remarks or reflections, that the women imagine why Napoleon, when not on the field of battle, would or could stay at home and abuse the women—and have the coffee.

These dear feminine creatures rarely have a grand and glorious time, especially those who are fortunate enough to have husbands. It is such a pleasure to them to allow their husbands to be lord of all when at home. To allow them to come in at the front door in muddy weather. To throw their overcoats and hats down in the library. To sit after meals with their feet on the mantle and split on the fender, while they smoke and tell their wives they do it to aid digestion. It is such a pleasure too, to know that they are willing for you to sleep "before" so you can get up without disturbing them to put the cat out, and to keep the children covered.

And nothing pleases a good woman more than to willingly get quiet while her husband entertains the company. Even if he borrows her shortskirted, and intimates that he could manage her affairs a great deal better than she does, she serenely smiles and says "that's all."

What a pity that Mr. Gritter, in his "Four Enchantments," did not scatter some seeds from "The sex of sexual change" to give one to each man in every land, that he might become a woman at pleasure.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Fact or Fiction about Two Great Fair Awards

A newspaper paragraph denounces as "false" the claim of a baking powder company to an award at the World's Fair. Whom can it mean?

Certainly not Dr. Price's. Why? Because the fact is plain, Dr. Price's exhibited, competed and received the highest award, both at Chicago and the California Midwinter Fair. The award was the Gold Medal.

Dr. Price's baking powder is pronounced by the strongest, the purest, the most wholesome and efficient of all the baking powders. Its title to confidence is unquestionable.

Can it be the manufacture of a New York powder, fictitiously labelled "absolutely pure" who are making "false" claims? That would be strange indeed, inasmuch as they were not even considered in the awards.

Was it Ammonia in the New York powder that prevented its makers from competing? If not what?

KILLING AT ASKINS.
W. F. Galloway Shoots Wm. Mason Through the Heart in Self Defense.

GLENDARE, Ky., Dec. 21 (Special).—A most unfortunate affair occurred near Askins this county on Saturday night.

On Saturday at the closing exercises of a school here at Whittinghill's school house in Ohio county there was given an entertainment. One of the musicians, Mr. W. F. Galloway, it seems, was attacked in a rough manner by one Wm. Mason. The conduct of Mason was such as to break up the entertainment. From there the musicians went to the home of Mr. Albert Barton where they were dispersing music to the visitors assembled. Mason, under the influence of whisky again came to Galloway and began a disturbance. Galloway left the house aiming to reach his home. Mason followed and was closely pursuing the man who was trying to get away. He was getting too close for Galloway's comfort and at the same time was still advancing with drawn knife. Galloway, in self defense, shot him through the heart. Mason walked a few steps and fell, dying in a few minutes.

We understand that Mason has been a wayward youth, giving his parents much trouble for years past. His parents live in Ohio county and are well-respected people. In interviewing Galloway, we find him a man of much respect, regret that the affair came up. He is a happy, sociable disposition.

Better AND Cheaper.

THE ROYAL BAKING POWDER is more economical than other brands because of its greater leavening strength, as shown by both the U. S. and Canadian Government Reports.

The other baking powders contain from 20 to 80 per cent. less leavening gas than the ROYAL. So the ROYAL, even should it cost more than the others, would be much the cheaper.

In addition to this the superior flavor, sweetness, wholesomeness and delicacy of the food raised by ROYAL BAKING POWDER would make any difference in cost insignificant.

Highest of all in leavening strength.—

A new way of courting has originated in this section. An unknown person throws a letter without any signature over a yard directly beside the road, midway between McDowell and the Monastery Bridge where dwells a promising young lady, with "heart whole and fancy free." The contents of the letter consisted in a glowing description of a spry, old widower with long teeth and curly hair, who wears a tall black hat and desired very much to know if it would be of use for him to "write to the slightest hope; yet his heart was to faint for him to approach. We think the quickest way for him to be decided will be for him to put in his appearance and the lady will soon give him an answer.

Christmas, our loved feast, is fast approaching. In the lowly hut, in the princely hall, on over the earth Christmas is hailed with gladness and joy.

Hearts are joyous, cheeks are flushed, faces are all smiles.

None are so true as the faithful on bright Christmas day.

Why should not we rejoice at this feast season—the season of the birth of our Blessed Redeemer, who came into this world for our redemption. What grateful homage would pay Him on this great day? We would like to wrap our hearts in devotion and love, and as the angels at midnight surround the humble stable of Bethlehem, we would humbly adore him, saying "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace to man of good will."

THE VALLEY.

Hog killing is all the go.

The fastest and the last word said was "Charlie."

Misses Norton and Kinchloe were the guests of Miss McCoy Sunday.

Mr. Abe Dowell was the guest of Miss Nellie Johnson Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Tom McCoy spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Norton last week.

Messrs. Ferd. Hodges and Joe Bandy were the guests of Miss Mary McCoy Sunday afternoon.

Isn't it strange, but ever the least true that Miss Allen Norton was at church Sunday without her arms.

Mr. Jake Sipe was the guest of Miss Sarah Lusk Sunday. As the "varmint" had been caught, he did not return until late.

It is reported that a certain young lady is going to marry. She wants to know to whom and when, so that she may be ready.

A good old fashioned hand-shaking prayer meeting was held at Mr. John Wood's Wednesday night, one that we enjoyed attending.

Mr. Amos Sipe is improving, but is not yet able to return home. Some people are inclined to think that he is enjoying his sickness immensely (you know he has such a good nature).

"A snake in the grass" is all the more dangerous from being unsuspected. So many of the blood medicines offered the public. To avoid all risk, ask your druggist for Ayer's Sanguiferia, and also for Ayer's Almanac, which is just out for the new year.

Death of Little Monnie Parsons. Mr. Parsons, Dec. 22—We are called upon to chronicle the death of little Monnie Parsons, who died of typhoid fever on the 30th day of September 1894. She was the only daughter of S. W. and Mrs. A. Parsons. Had she lived to see the 8th day of January 1895, she would have been five years old, but she only lived to draw out the most ardent affections of her parents and all who knew her. She seemed to be a natural born comforter. She was by no means childish in her ways. When only three years old, she took great pains in carrying her mother's shoes, and when she was four, she took her mother's shoes and carried them by her side. I must confess that I have learned many practical lessons from little Monnie through a child. We tender to the bereaved parents and relatives our heartfelt sympathy and pray that God's benedictions may rest upon them. A. N. W.

Mr. Ira P. Walmore, a prominent real estate agent of San Angelo, Texas, has used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for several years. He has found it a natural born comforter. She was by no means childish in her ways. When only three years old, she took great pains in carrying her mother's shoes, and when she was four, she took her mother's shoes and carried them by her side. I must confess that I have learned many practical lessons from little Monnie through a child. We tender to the bereaved parents and relatives our heartfelt sympathy and pray that God's benedictions may rest upon them. A. N. W.
